

Tunxis Country Club:

Picturesque venue offers numerous challenges

From the rolling hillsides to the meandering Farmington River, from the fertile farmlands to the quaint villages, Tunxis Country Club is nestled in the scenic Farmington Valley amid one of Connecticut's most desirable communities.

And with 45 holes spread across three distinct layouts, Tunxis offers players one of the state's most compelling venues to test their golfing skills. No other course provides more challenges than Tunxis, where you can choose from two 18-hole championship layouts or a nine-hole course that is equally demanding.

Designed by Al Zikorus as an 18-hole layout, Tunxis expanded to 27 holes in 1962, and then to 36 holes in 1985. Ten years later, nine new holes were built and crowned Tunxis as Connecticut's largest golfing facility.

The Green course, a par-70, 6,446-yard layout from the back tees, has an open, links-style feel, but with narrow landing areas, numerous mounds and highly difficult par-3s. For example, the 205-yard 5th hole is one of the most challenging at Tunxis.

Meanwhile, the White course features water, and lots of it. At 6,638 yards and par-72, the White course plays somewhat more difficult than the Green and is especially testing from the back tees. The course features a few partial island greens requiring precision on approach shots.

The Red course is a full, regulation nine-hole layout that borders the Farmington River and is perfect for a quick round on the weekend.

Tunxis offers full banquet services for charity outings and other events. The outdoor Tunxis Pavilion can host up to 275 people, perfect for weddings and large parties. And the Tavern on the Green will seat up to 100 guests indoors.

Tunxis features a full golf shop staffed by PGA Professionals and a grass driving range.
